The image displays the ArcSoft PhotoStudio 6 activation process through four sequential steps:

- Step 1: A main window titled "Personalize Your Software" with the ArcSoft logo. It features a text input field for "This software belongs to:" and "Examples: The Smith Family, Sarah Johnson, CatLover32". Below the field is explanatory text: "We use this name to personalize your software. For example, projects you create with different ArcSoft software applications – such as greeting cards and movies – use this name in the project credits. Please remember this name. You will not be able to change it later. If you need to reinstall your software (for example, if you purchase a new computer) and you have already purchased additional modules, you will need to enter your name just as you have here in order to use those modules." Buttons for "OK" and "Cancel" are at the bottom.
- Step 2: A "Photo Book" icon with the text "Photo Book Activate Now" below it. A yellow box highlights the text "1. Click Activate Now".
- Step 3: An "Activate Product(s)" dialog box. It states "Photo Book is not activated." and includes a "Buy now" button and the text "Purchase and activate Photo Book". Below, it says "If you have already purchased this title, click here:" followed by a "Re-Activate" button. A yellow box highlights the text "3. Click Re-Activate".
- Step 4: Another "Activate Product(s)" dialog box. It states "Photo Book is not activated." and includes the text "To re-activate your software, please enter your activation code:" followed by a green text input field and a "Re-Activate" button. A yellow box highlights the text "4. Enter the activation code".
